DIRECTOR'S NOTE

"Mom! Dad! Can you read me a bedtime story?"

I'm sure many of you have heard that before, or even remember asking your parents the very same thing. I know I sure did. My parents had plenty of books, and no shortage of imagination. The spines of the books called out from the bookshelf, toy chest and closet, begging to be read. Though inanimate, they are filled with life.

We all love a good story. That's what brings us to the library, the movies, and the theater. We want to be whisked away to another time and place. We want to escape for a little while. That's what makes Beauty and the Beast such an enduring story. We can't help but be pulled into the magical world, and relate to the characters we find inside.

That magical world sucked me in when I was a child, watching the movie on VHS at home. In Beauty and the Beast we learn that love and sacrifice go hand-in-hand. We learn that people can indeed change for the better. Finally, we learn what makes a monster and what makes a man. There are so many lessons that adults and children can take away from this tale.

I am so incredibly proud of the cast of this show. Since January, these students have been practicing day in and day out to bring this story to life. With difficult dances and music, as well as peculiar characters to act out, this has been quite a journey. Every step of the way, our students met these challenges head on. Just as well, I have to thank all of the students, staff, and volunteers who helped make this happen. Many, many hours were spent making sets, costumes, and more!

The St. Ann community has been so supportive of the theater, and I am immensely honored to be able to make Beauty and the Beast the first middle school spring musical on our newly renovated stage.

Sit back, and let us tell you about a tale as old as time, true as it can be... Beauty and the Beast.

- Ryan Cooper
